

How to use a story board to plan for writing

1. Fold an A4 piece of paper in half three times to create a grid with eight boxes.
2. Guide each student to draw their ideas for each part of their story into each of the boxes.
3. Cut out each box and arrange them to tell a story. Explore how a different order can tell a different story.
4. Stick each image onto separate pieces of paper and write the text to tell the story. Experiment with the placement of the pictures and the text.
5. Design your cover pages and create your book using the LittleScribe platform.

Teaching Tips:

- ✓ Once your students have filled their eight boxes, initiate a conversation to unpack their ideas. They might discuss with you the sequence of their story. Do the boxes represent their storyline, does the story have a beginning, middle and end, who are the characters, what is the problem in the story?
- ✓ Explore the impact of different sequencing by physically manipulating the order of the images to create an alternative telling of the story.
- ✓ With older students, you can take the conversation deeper, concentrating on particular images to really extract their ideas and thoughts, allowing them to take more risks when it comes to writing their book.
